On March 8, 2018, Metropolitan Health and Wellness Institution and Sarawitthaya School were assessed the Health Literate School Standard from National Health Reform Commission at Sarawitthaya School. They found that Metropolitan Health and Wellness Institution has proceeded the Health Literacy process to Sarawitthaya School’s personnel until students had better health behavior and healthier. They have a plan, evaluate themselves and quality development in order to raise awareness for caring their health themselves and tell their family. Communicating health status, exchanging among healthcare provider, teacher, students and parents and make variety choices to themselves and practice in daily life lead to be more health literacy, then the health problem was decreased.
